

All about Grasshoppers

Name:

Avri Reich and Ashlyn Buerk

What do Grasshoppers Eat?

Grasshoppers eat plants-specifically grass. They do a lot of eating in their lifetime. They have very strong mouths and are great chewers.

How does weather affect Grasshoppers?

On a hot day, a grasshopper would move to a shady spot, or hide under leaves, trees, or bark. On a cold day, it would shift to a sunny spot or burrow underground.

What is a Grasshopper's lifespan?

Grasshoppers live for about two months. During this time, they will find a mate, and do lots of eating.

Are Grasshoppers Poisonous?

No, grasshoppers aren't poisonous.

Do Grasshoppers Bite?

No, grasshoppers don't bite. Although they have very strong mouths and are great chewers, they are actually quite friendly.

What is the egg laying process for a grasshopper?

After two grasshoppers mate, the female injects her abdomen into the ground and lays her eggs in the soil. The eggs hatch in about one week.

Where are grasshoppers originally from?

Grasshoppers are originally from North America.

What color are grasshoppers?

Grasshoppers can vary from colors of green, brown, and even pink! The wings of the grasshoppers usually have bold patterns.

What is the population of grasshoppers in Ohio?

There are about 5,844 grasshoppers in Ohio.

powered by

 PIKTOCHART